SCOTUS Rules On Pornography

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court guaranteed Americans Monday the right to read dirty books or look at dirty movies in the privacy of their homes.

"A state has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read or what films he may watch," said Justice Thurgood Marshall for the court.

The ruling, an important extension of freedom of thought, forbids states to make mere possession of obscene material a crime—but leaves them free to restrict public distribution.

Marshall said an Atlanta bachelor, Robert Eli Stanley, sentenced to a year in prison because he had three "stag" films at home, was "asserting the right to read or observe what he pleases—the right to satisfy his intellectual and emotional needs in the privacy of his own home."

"Whatever may be the justifications for other statutes regulating obscenity," Marshall said, "we do not think they reach into the privacy of one's own home."

Chief Justice Earl Warren, Justices William O. Douglas, John Marshall Harlan and Abe Fortas joined Marshall's opinion. Justice Hugo L. Black concurred separately.

The three remaining Justices, Potter Stewart, William J. Brennan Jr. and Byron R. White said they would have upped the conviction of the Atlanta because officers used a search warrant issued for other reasons—to look for gambling material—to seize the films.

The obscenity ruling took precedence on a busy day in which the court also:

—Tightened the reins on the state legislatures, requiring them to justify any variance from strict mathematical equality on the basis of population in designing legislative districts.

American Jailed In Mexico Escapes Sunday

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Disguised as a woman, Dykes Askew Simmons Jr. escaped from a Monterrey prison Sunday by walking out with a group of about 400 women who had just completed a visit.

Simmons, 40, a Fort Worth laborer, was interviewed by KGBT-TV news director Lee Harr at an undisclosed location in Texas. He said he did not escape from the prison in an automobile as prison officials had reported.

Simmons, the first U.S. citizen ever sentenced to death in Mexico, told Harr he was disguised with pancake makeup, a shawl over his head and was wearing a dress "padded in all the appropriate places" when he fled from the Nuevo Leon prison.

Simmons told Harr he walked about 500 yards to an automobile and was crossing the Rio Grande at Roma, Tex., 80 miles down the Rio Grande from Laredo, Tex., about 90 minutes later.

He said he discarded the disguise as the car was pulling out of Monterrey.

"The further north you go, the prettier it gets," Simmons quoted a U.S. Customs officer at the Roma International Bridge as saying at the time Simmons crossed to freedom in Texas. Simmons said he agreed with the officer.

Harr refused to say where Simmons went after he crossed into Texas.

Simmons said he was waiting at this location for his lawyer, Dennis W. Frederickson of Beverly Hills, Calif. Frederickson was formerly an investigator for lawyer Melvin Belli, who at one time represented Simmons.

Simmons would not reveal his immediate plans to Harr, saying only that he was waiting to talk with his lawyer.

The escapee, who called himself "the forgotten American," was missed Sunday night when he failed to respond to a prison roll call.

Simmons was arrested Oct. 12, 1959, after he drove from Laredo to Monterrey on a vacation trip. He was accused of killing three members of a prominent Monterrey dentist's family.

One of the three victims, Hilda Perez Villagomez, 22, from her death bed identified Simmons as the slayer. The other victims, Martha Perez Villagomez, 19, and Manuel Perez Villagomez, 17, were found dead in the family car on a deserted stretch of highway between Laredo and Monterrey.

Simmons denied the charges and later said he was told he could be freed if he would confess.

Simmons was twice sentenced to death, becoming the first U.S. citizen ever to be sentenced to death in Mexico.

—Agreed to decide whether government agencies may help finance the construction of facilities at church-related universities.

—Agreed to decide whether officials must obtain search warrants before they can rig undercover agents with hidden radio transmitters to trap narcotics suspects.

—Forbade large corporations to condition the lending of money on the customer's promise to buy goods only from them.

The Georgia obscenity law, now invalid, was based on the theory that the state should protect individuals and society from literature and films that could spawn antisocial conduct. Marshall said: "We are not certain that this argument amounts to anything more than the assertion that the state has the right to control the moral content of a person's thoughts."

"To some," he added, "this may be a noble purpose, but it is wholly inconsistent with the philosophy of the First Amendment."

Besides, he said, for the majority, there appears to be little proof that exposure to obscenity leads to deviant sexual behavior or to crimes of sexual violence.

"Given the present state of knowledge," he said, "the state may no more prohibit mere possession of obscenity on the ground it may lead to antisocial conduct than it may prohibit possession of chemistry books on the ground that they may lead to the manufacture of homemade spirits."

The court's apportionment actions invalidated Missouri and New York congressional districting plans. More important, it finally clarified what it meant five years ago when it said congressional districts must be drawn "as nearly as is practicable" to provide equality of voting power.

This rule, known as the "one man, one vote" principle, led to massive redrawing of congressional districts, and state legislative districts, as well as general with something less than exact mathematical equality.

Now, in 6-3 rulings delivered by Justice Brennan, the court said each state must, "make a good-faith effort to achieve precise mathematical equality" and unless population variances "are shown to have resulted despite such effort, the state must justify each variance, no matter how small."

The ruling means, immediately, that Missouri and New York will have to come up with new congressional apportionments in time for the 1970 elections. More than that, the decision is certain to encourage federal courts to disapprove plans where variances are not sufficiently explained.

Nixon Throws Out First Baseball Of The Season

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon proved Monday to be a typical baseball fan who will root for the hometown team, no matter what the score is.

Nixon performed the annual ceremonial rite reserved for presidents—the throwing out of the first baseball—at the opening game of the major league season.

And he completed his task with gusto.

The Washington Senators flopped, however, losing to the New York Yankees 8 to 4.

Before going to the ball park the President had a long meeting with his Urban Affairs Council. The meeting lasted so long—nearly two hours—that Nixon passed up a scheduled appearance at the annual egg roll on the White House south lawn.

Word that Nixon would not appear brought scattered boos from among the crowd of almost 18,000 youngsters and their parents who had gathered for the post-Easter frolic. Mrs. Nixon and their daughter Tricia greeted the egg rollers from a White House balcony.

There was no word of what went on at the Urban Affairs meeting, but it presumably was concerned with the administration's domestic legislation program. House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., has urged Nixon to start sending his proposals to Congress soon.

At the Robert F. Kennedy stadium, Nixon was joined by a capacity crowd of 45,112 opening-day fans. The President was accompanied to the game by an entourage of six youngsters from the local Little League and Robert Short, the Senators' new owner who handled the finances for the Democrats during the 1968 election campaign.

Putting on a new glove, Nixon lobbed a high, arching toss over the heads of photographers and into the hands of Hank Allen, a Washington outfielder. A second toss, similar to the first, went to Senators' coach Joe Camacho. A third, thrown a little wide and wobbly, was retrieved by Allen.

Nixon made it clear in talking to the two managers, New York's Ralph Houk and Washington's Ted Williams, whom he

Fourteen More Face Trial Against Mutiny Charges

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP) — A defense move for a change of venue was taken under consideration Monday as another 14 Army privates went on trial on controversial mutiny charges.

The defense asked that the trial be returned to the San Francisco Presidio.

The charges grew from a sit-down, singing demonstration last October at the San Francisco Presidio stockade. The accused are among 27 young soldiers charged with the general court martial offense in the incident. Eight already have been convicted.

Lt. Col. James A. Hagan, court law officer, reserved a ruling on the motion by Terence Hallinan, attorney for all 14 accused. Hagan ruled against a motion by a military defense counsel, Capt. Emmitt Veary, representing four of the GIs, for three more assistants. Hagan said he had enough help already.

Although a base spokesman said no special security had been laid on in view of the controversial trial, observers said military police measures seemed tight.

The courtroom is in an isolated part of the base. Manned road-blocks have been set up. Anyone heading toward the courtroom is subject to questioning. About 20 newsmen and 30 spectators were on hand when the trial started.

Hallinan said Sunday he would demand the trial be moved back to the Presidio, where it was originally scheduled.

The trial was ordered moved to this coastal base about 100 miles south of San Francisco because of the number and intensity of demonstrations in the Bay Area.

The removal order came from Lt. Gen Stanley Larsen, Sixth Army (Presidio) commandant, who ordered the courts martial.

Larsen's statement that the Ft. Ord site would "protect the constitutional rights of the accused and the interests of the government" was attacked by Hallinan.

No matter where the trial is held, the attorney said, his defense strategy will be to convince the court that conditions at the Presidio stockade were so bad they justified the sit-down demonstration that led to the mutiny charges.

Of the 27 who took part in the demonstration, three have escaped, eight have been convicted and sentenced, two are hospitalized and the rest are now on trial.

The convicted soldiers have

Enemy Gunners Down U.S. Helicopter

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy gunners downed three U.S. helicopters this weekend bringing the total lost during the war to one short of 2,500. On the ground the North Vietnamese killed 14 Americans and wounded 28.

The only chopper casualty announced by the U.S. command was one wounded crewman. The three downed aircraft brought to 10 the total of helicopters lost the first week in April.

Ground fighting ebbed to its lowest level since the enemy began its spring offensive more than six weeks ago, but North Vietnamese infantrymen struck hard in two areas Sunday night.

In one clash, enemy mortars pounded a night bivouac of paratroopers from the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade defending the southern approaches to the provincial capital of Bao Loc, about 100 miles northeast of Saigon.

In the wake of the mortar barrage, enemy infantrymen been dealt prison terms ranging from nine months to 16 years.

The soldiers staged a sit-down and sang "We Shall Overcome" and "America the Beautiful" in protest of the fatal shooting of a stockade prisoner by a guard on Oct. 11.

The dead soldier was Pvt. Richard Bunch, 19, felled by a 12-gauge shotgun blast as he fled a work detail. The Army declared the killing justifiable homicide.

Before the men were charged, they presented a list of grievances to the stockade command, including protest against guards carrying shotguns.

surged up to the barbed wire perimeter of the camp, hurling grenades and firing machine guns and rifles. Eleven Americans were killed and 13 wounded in the assault.

The embattled paratroops called in helicopter gunships and extra troops and drove off the attackers after a 2½-hour battle. Enemy casualties were not known.

The second clash, which also lasted 2½ hours, occurred in the Viet Cong's War Zone C stronghold in northern Tay Ninh Province along the Cambodian border where thousands of U.S. cavalrymen are pursuing troops of the North Vietnamese 1st and 7th divisions.

Small-arms and machine-gun fire raked troops of the 1st Air Cavalry sweeping 65 miles northwest of Saigon killing three Americans and wounding 15. American artillery and warplanes finally drove off the enemy killing at least three.

The loss of 10 helicopters by U.S. forces last week was well below the average that has seen the United States lose helicopters to all causes at the rate of 72 per month in the first three months of 1969.

That average is below the yearly figure for all of 1968, when U.S. forces lost 1,038 helicopters—an even split of 519 each to ground fire and to other causes—for a monthly average of 86.5, or almost three a day.

A second mass grave containing bodies of men and women executed by enemy troops during the 1968 Tet offensive was found near Hue Monday. Workers exhumed 20 bodies and were continuing to open the grave 10 miles east of Hue.

Twelve days ago, a South Vietnamese soldier on patrol about 12 miles southeast of Hue stumbled on a wire that bound the hands of a buried body. Uncovering the corpse, authorities discovered the first mass grave which yielded 134 bodies.

EASTER FINERY MISSING

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Easter finery was missing from two Negro Churches here Sunday as the pastors and worshippers wore work clothes and blue jeans to celebrate a "Black Easter."

Participants said the services at the New Zion Missionary Baptist Church and the Humboldt Parkway Baptist Church were to commemorate the death a year ago of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

They said they would donate the money they would have spent on new clothing to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King headed.

Rogers Voices Hope For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers voiced hope Monday for mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese troop withdrawal this year but ruled out a one-sided American pullout now.

"We do have a plan which we think is a fair and reasonable one for ending this conflict," Rogers added. But again, he avoided naming any peace date and acknowledged "there isn't any magic formula" for ending the war.

Speaking at his first formal Washington news conference since taking office in January as President Nixon's foreign affairs chief, Rogers said also:

—The United States has decided to postpone indefinitely the potential application of economic sanctions against Peru for Peru's seizure of U.S. oil property. Wednesday was the legal deadline for such action unless the Lima regime indicated willingness to pay just compensation.

Because Peru has offered administrative processes for appeal by the affected U.S. oil firm, Washington is deferring the threatened cutoff of U.S. aid and sugar payments to Peru "pending the outcome of this process."

—The United States is preparing to start the long-awaited U.S.-Soviet missile-curb talks in late spring or early summer. And one of the first things U.S. negotiators will ask the Soviets is why they are deploying huge SS9 nuclear rockets.

Intelligence reports of a Soviet buildup in 25-megaton SS9s are a major Nixon administration argument for going ahead with the U.S. Safeguard antiballistic missile system. Pentagon experts contend SS9s indicate a Soviet first-strike capability, against which an ABM defense is needed.

For himself, Rogers said "I have difficulty in believing that the Soviet Union would initiate a first strike" which would mean "destruction of mankind" in a nuclear war. But "certainly it is difficult to understand why the Soviet Union is deploying SS9s," he said.

The American company involved in the Peruvian dispute is the International Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

The Peruvian government has deposited a check for $71 million in its national bank in Lima as payment for the seized IPC property. But it has embargoed payment of the check until the company pays the $690 million which Peru says it owes for what the government calls illegal extraction of oil from Peruvian soil since 1924.

The IPC argues that the debt is unfounded because the company held legal title to the oil and subsurface mineral rights.

The 55-year-old secretary of state was pressed particularly about Vietnam during his 35-minute, jam-packed press conference in the State Department's old west auditorium. Antiwar protesters demonstrated across the country over the weekend and congressional critics are beginning to demand that the new Washington leadership do or at least show something toward a peaceful settlement.

Rogers repeated Nixon's call for secrecy about any private talks with the enemy and pledged "We are going to proceed in every possible way to achieve a peace."

He announced he himself would make his first visit to Vietnam, spending three or four next 40 days.

Haskell Karp Receives Heart

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A human heart was implanted Monday into the chest of Haskell Karp after he had survived 65 hours with a mechanical device.

The 47-year-old Skokie, Ill., printing estimator was reported in satisfactory condition after receiving the heart of a Massachusetts woman in a 2½-hour operation at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

"I'm confident he will respond," said Dr. Denton A. Cooley, who had just completed his 19th human heart transplant.

The donor, Mrs. Barbara Ewan, 40, died minutes after arriving on a dramatic jet ambulance flight from Lawrence, Mass.

Cooley said the eight-ounce plastic and fabric device he implanted in Karp's chest on an emergency and temporary basis last Friday will allow persons to live until a human donor is available.

"Now we can support the life of a recipient until a donor can be available," he told a news conference. "It is available to temporize—to buy time—until a transplant can be performed."

Cooley was reminded that he only recently had predicted artificial hearts would not be practical for some time.

"It's here today," he replied. "I've jumped the gun by five or six years."

Cooley said Karp was reluctant at first to become a transplant recipient.

Surgery was scheduled Friday to repair a severely damaged heart chamber and Cooley had explained to the patient that there was a 30 per cent chance of failure and that the world's first completely mechanical heart might be required.

The operation was only 45 minutes under way when Cooley decided the mechanical device had to be used on an emergency basis.

Karp responded well and joked with his surgeon Sunday about being a good golfer.

Mrs. Shirley Karp, meanwhile, had issued a tearful appeal for "someone, somewhere" to make a donor heart available.

Mrs. Carol Burns, a daughter of Mrs. Ewan, accompanied her mother to Houston and said the family's decision was a response to Mrs. Karp's plea.

Mrs. Ewan's husband died of a heart attack several years ago. Mrs. Ewan was suffering from irreversible brain damage from doctors attributed to an undetermined ailment. Lawrence General Hospital said she had been a patient there since March 19 and in a coma since Saturday.

The claim was based on a report distributed by officials here from Col. Mohamed Shuwa, commander of the Nigeria 1st Division, that federal troops had overrun Uzuakoli, a railway town eight miles north of Umuahia.

But a dispatch from the secessionist capital quoted a Biafran communique as saying the rebel troops had recaptured Uzuakoli from the federals Friday and continued to push north "gaining more territory from the enemy."

The Biafran communique charged that "the Nigerians, since Friday, 'resorted to long-range indiscriminate artillery bombardment of civilian concentrations.' I said hundreds of persons up to eight miles from federal positions had been killed in shelling."

Shuwa's report to Lagos said the federal push into Uzuakoli had left Umuahia "only a mile or two from range for Nigerian 105mm howitzers."

He said they were made on order from the United States.

days there during a trip late in May which will also take him to Bangkok and Tehran. At Bangkok there will be a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization periodic meeting and in Tehran a Central Treaty Organization meeting.

As to whether he had any realistic hope of starting to bring GIs home in 1969 from the 540,000-man force in Vietnam, Rogers said "I would certainly hope that there would be some chance of mutual withdrawal of troops this year."

But "we don't anticipate any immediate withdrawal of troops" without North Vietnamese agreement to do likewise, he said. This still left open the possibility for future U.S. withdrawals based on a greater South Vietnamese takeover of the fighting.

The new secretary of state's remarks recalled even more ambitious hopes by Clark Clifford when he was former President Lyndon B. Johnson's secretary of defense. Clifford said last Dec. 10 he would like to see the start of a mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese withdrawal "in the next 40 days."

Ky In Paris, Will Not Stay For Talks

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnam's dapper vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky, returned to Paris Monday after a two-month absence. Ky indicated he would go on to Saigon after a brief stop rather than remain for the Vietnam peace talks.

"The enemy at the present time is not ready for serious talks," Ky told newsmen when he arrived from Washington after discussions with President Nixon and other high officials.

Federal Troops Pushing Toward Biafran Capital

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The federal army claimed its troops were pushing Monday to within artillery range of Umuahia, the capital of secessionist Biafra.

The claim was based on a report distributed by officials here from Col. Mohamed Shuwa, commander of the Nigeria 1st Division, that federal troops had overrun Uzuakoli, a railway town eight miles north of Umuahia.

But a dispatch from the secessionist capital quoted a Biafran communique as saying the rebel troops had recaptured Uzuakoli from the federals Friday and continued to push north "gaining more territory from the enemy."

Hovering Help For Auto-Injured

The yearly carnage on the nation's highways is often likened to that of a casualty-strewn battlefield. Thus it makes sense that one of the lifesaving systems that has helped take a little of the horror out of the Vietnam war should be applied to alleviating the misery we inflict on ourselves with our automobiles. This is the rescue helicopter.

The Department of Transportation has announced an agreement with the University of Arizona to conduct a one-year medical evacuation system to serve rural and remote areas of Arizona.

The funds will provide for the leasing of two helicopters with highly trained crews. One team will be on ground alert and the other on airborne surveillance over highway routes which have a high accident history. When a highway crash occurs, the closest team will rescue and treat any injured and evacuate them to the nearest medical facility.

Similar demonstration projects are being conducted in Nebraska and the cities of Detroit, Los Angeles and New York.

Many public safety and medical officials predict that there will be a virtual boom in helicopter ambulance service when hostilities end in Vietnam and a large number of helicopters are declared surplus, reports Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine.

There is also expected to be a large reservoir of men who have served as medics or corpsmen and have experience with emergency first-aid and helicopter evacuation of the wounded.

The boom has already begun modestly in a number of localities. In Wyandotte, Mich., a commercial ambulance operator is offering what is believed to be the only commercial helicopter ambulance.

A combined Ohio State University, state National Guard and state highway patrol operation has made 15 evacuations of emergency patients in the last 15 months and has rendered aid on about 35 calls.

The California Highway Patrol has purchased three helicopters that can be quickly converted into ambulances.

Army hospital detachments in Alabama and Texas evacuated more than 70 accident victims by helicopter in 1967.

A parallel development, says the magazine, is the building of facilities at hospitals to handle helicopters. So far, only 147 out of the 7,850 general hospitals in the nation have officially certified "helipads" with 38 more under construction. However, a far greater number of emergency hospitals accommodate helicopters under FAA emergency flight rules.

Nixon Faces Decision On Model Cities Program

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The buck is nearing President Nixon's desk on the Model Cities question—one of the thorniest items in the social welfare legacy of the Johnson Administration.

Nixon's Urban Affairs Council is expected to ask him this week to put the full weight of his office behind a revamped program, sources say.

But none of his advisers will be able to tell the President with certainty the ultimate cost of the five-year experiment now geared to 150 of the nation's poorest neighborhoods.

Nor can anyone give him an ironclad guarantee that the program, committed to widespread community participation, will work.

Model Cities seeks to unite scattered federal, state and private efforts in a coordinated assault on poverty and blight. Six million people, most of them Negroes, live in the selected "model" neighborhoods.

"The central importance of Model Cities is not in the additional assistance the program makes available but in the machinery and the processes for coordinated planning that it requires," read a confidential pre-inaugural report to Nixon.

The report, written by a task force headed by Richard P. Nathan, now assistant Budget Bureau director, acknowledged that "it is not clear at this time what the full cost of Model Cities will be."

"To some extent," the December report said, "the pace of Model Cities can be adjusted to federal budget constraints, but there is a limit to how much the local plans can be scaled down or stretched out without vitiating the promise of the whole undertaking."

The report recommended that the President consider adopting "the Model Cities approach as a basic strategy of the new administration for achieving decentralization and coordination of urban assistance programs, with the intention of extending the approach to additional communities and neighborhoods as rapidly as possible."

But, for the concept to work, the report said, "the Model Cities structure must be made the accepted instrument for the entire federal government—not just HUD—for coordinating assistance to the designated model neighborhoods."

Only the President can give such exalted status to a federal program.

A Department of Housing and Urban Development memorandum attempted to forecast Model Cities' cost to 1975, using projections based on the five-year plans of six of the 150 participating cities.

The result was a low estimate of $27 billion—a figure presented to members of the Urban Affairs Council—a median estimate of $32 billion and a high estimate of $56 billion.

Complicating the cost picture is the profusion of programs already pumping money into the participating cities. "If you could identify the money going into the areas, they may already have $32 billion or more," said one HUD official.

He said he didn't know for sure because no one does.

Robert C. Wood, who succeeded Nixon aide Daniel P. Moynihan as director of the Joint Center for Urban Studies said "appetites and capacities" must be kept in mind while considering the cost of Model Cities.

"The cities must digest it. They've got to spend it."

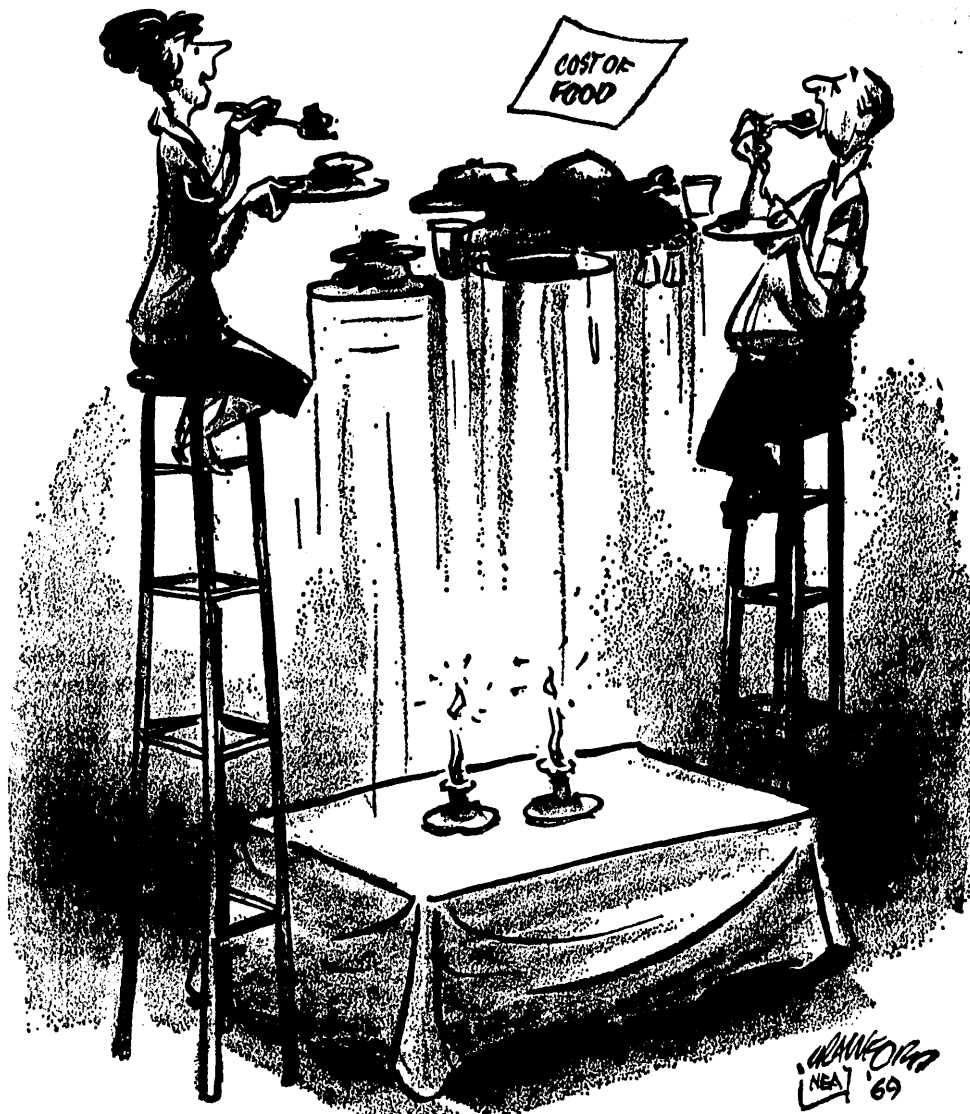

Technical expertise must develop to execute programs now on the planning boards. That, said Wood, will take time.

And the obstacles in the path are many. They include city hall-neighborhood tensions which are running high, longstanding interagency rivalries that must be overcome at both the federal and state levels, and the ever-present peril of embarrassing failures, such as those that plagued the Office of Economic Opportunity.

"In adopting the Model Cities approach," said the Nathan task force, "the new administration should recognize at the outset that strong administrative steps will have to be taken—steps that the Johnson administration has failed to take—to overcome the obstacles to its effective use."

"To make Model Cities work will be one of the most complex, as well as one of the most important, administrative problems facing the new administration."

The Uncanny Parallel

A newspaper in Glasgow, Scotland, did some digging and came up with some remarkable similarities between Apollo 8's round-the-moon voyage and the lunar journey described by Jules Verne in "From Earth to the Moon" over 100 years ago. The provocative statistics were reprinted in McDonnell Douglas Corp.'s "Douglas News."

Spacecraft: Apollo 8, 12 feet long, 13 feet wide, 12,392 pounds; Verne, 12 feet long, 13 feet wide, 12,230 pounds.

Launch Date: Apollo 8, Dec. 22; Verne, Dec. 11.

Launch Site: Apollo 8, Cape Kennedy; Verne, in Florida near Cape Kennedy.

Crew: Apollo 8, three men; Verne, three men.

Splashdown: Apollo 8, Atlantic Ocean; Verne, Pacific Ocean.

This example of fiction that is as strange as truth ranks with an earlier scientific curiosity. In "Gulliver's Travels," written in 1726, Jonathan Swift uncannily described the size and orbits of the two moons of Mars a century and a half before they were discovered by astronomers.

The way science is catching up with imagination, it makes one wonder if there is such a thing as science "fiction" any more.

Huntsville, Ala., Is Jittery In Space, ABM Indecision

By BRUCE BIOND
NEA Washington Correspondent
HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (NEA) — This remarkable missile-and-space age boom town waits nervously while Congress argues the merits of a $6.5 billion ABM defense system and weighs appropriations for a projected 10 additional moon landings.

President Nixon's announcement of a limited ABM deployment cheered city leaders. Some 1,200 people are employed in development of the Sentinel ABM system at the 40,000-acre Redstone Arsenal complex. Any cut-off would be sharply felt.

Huntsville's citizenry has known since 1950, when the Army Missile Command was established here, that much of its economic fate has rested in the hands of Congress.

But it has never been edgier than now, with ABM under fire and the number of moon landings still really unsettled.

This town, which has zoomed from a mere 15,000 in 1950 to an estimated 160,000 this year, nevertheless has an almost mystical faith in two things:

That Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center at the Redstone complex, will not let it down but will pound on desks in Washington until fresh money for more big programs is allotted.

And, that Congress itself somehow will not allow all that steel and concrete, worth maybe $500 million, to fall into disuse.

Huntsville's leaders, moreover, do not simply sit and fret while Congress talks. They have an industrial expansion committee which has just lured four major non-space related plants to the area, not to mention other lesser good catches.

Today missile and space programs account for some 27,000 jobs at Huntsville, with non-space providing 15,000 but growing. One of the new industries expects to employ 8,000 people within two years. The expansion committee is hard after still more new plants.

Yet, curiously, this energetic effort to shore up the boom's economic base so it can withstand the shock of possible missile-space curtailments has its own real limits.

A new industry's search for manpower here is hurt so long as Redstone continues big, soaking up the labor pool and sustaining high wage levels. Right now Redstone draws workers from 18 counties in northern Alabama and adjacent Tennessee, some driving 120-mile round trips daily.

Huntsville is one of the rare places in Alabama where Negroes man many of the pumps at gas stations patronized by the white citizenry. Most of the whites who normally have those jobs work at the government complex.

No one who has observed the city leaders' aggressive spirit, however, expects them to yield easily in their battle for more non-space-related employment. Among the most driving are the older business leaders whose prominence here pre-dates the missile era.

Clearly, reports of a serious downturn in Huntsville's arching economic curves are premature. In 1968, its commercial and residential construction came to $34.5 million against Birmingham's $50 million — striking when its 160,000 population is set against an estimated 350,000 for Alabama's industrial capital further south.

Admittedly, Huntsville earlier had twice surpassed Birmingham. But it is holding up well, and its ever-changing configuration of new factories, shops and office buildings gives it a rosy look.

Maybe the town is just going to be incredibly lucky. Some people felt that way when workmen, making test borings for the new county building downtown, struck oil.

But spokesmen at Redstone, where key officials work constantly with Huntsville leaders to help them build a lasting base, think the town is a quality place which makes its own luck and will somehow survive as a rich island in a lonely sea of woods and hills.

Ann Landers:

Tells What Blind CAN Do

Dear Ann Landers: I cannot truthfully say I read the letter signed "A Friend's Friend." It was read to me by Bill Fitzgerald, a colleague in the Michigan House of Representatives. I am blind.

I was interested in the letter, as Bill knew I would be, because it concerned a mother whose son had decided to marry a blind girl. The question was raised—"What if they have children?"

My wife Jennie, who is also blind, married me 27 years ago. (We met in Michigan's School for the Blind in Lansing.) Jennie and I had ten children—every one of them with perfect vision and in excellent health. Our life together has been wonderful. Our oldest child is 24. Our youngest is 7. We have two grandchildren.

In my 15 years as an elected member of the Michigan State House of Representatives, I've made countless trips from Lansing to Detroit. I used to travel with my Seeing-Eye dog. I now travel alone.

I hope "Friend's Friend" sees this and stops worrying about what blind people can't do.—Robert D. Mahoney, Sixth District

Dear Robert Mahoney: Thank you for an inspiring letter. And thank you, too, for the photograph of your family. The girls are lovely! The boys are handsome. You and Mrs. Mahoney have a great deal to be proud of.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a boy, 18, a freshman in college. I never cut classes, I take good notes, and I do a considerable amount of outside study. Yet my grades are no better than average. I know kids who cut like crazy, sleep during lectures, have never owned a notebook, and their grades are consistently better than mine.

Today I got back a psychology exam. I made a 78. The kid next to me got a 99. When I asked if he studied for the exam, he said, "Of course not. I faked it." I'm ready to start "faking it" and see what happens. I bet I'll be on probation before you can say "Wilhelm Wundt."

What's the secret of making good grades besides pure study? Is there some secret to it? Thanks for any help you can give me.—Beggins For a C

Dear Beg: First accept the fact that "all men are created equal" doesn't apply to educational aptitude. Some students soak up information like a blotter and retain nearly all of it. Others must work their heads to the bone in order to comprehend half of what they read and hear and then they forget three-fourths of that within six hours.

If you slave as hard as you claim and make only average grades, my advice is to keep plugging. You will form work

Law For Today

Q. My father-in-law, who recently remarried, is arranging to have his funeral bill sent to his sons. Can he do this without their consent?

A. The law expects every person to pay for his own funeral. For that reason, funeral expenses are chargeable to a person's estate. However, children may be liable for some or all funeral expenses if a person dies penniless and his widow cannot pay.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — She seems tiny, even frail, but when Petula Clark begins to sing, there is no mistaking her authority. Her admirers will be able to see and hear their Pet tonight when she stars in her second television special on NBC.

To casual listeners who heard her "Downtown" and other big selling records, Petula Clark seemed to be another teen-age favorite. Such an attitude ranks the British singer, who's pointed out that she has no rock 'n' roller but a performer who has appeared in cabarets and concert halls throughout Europe.

More recently she has added a new dimension to her career: movies. She can currently be seen with Fred Astaire in "Fanny's Rainbow." Coming up: "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" with Peter O'Toole.

Between tapings for tonight's special with guests Andy Williams, Oscar nominee Ron Moody and guitarist-singer Sacha Distel, Petula mused on how her own singing style has developed.

"It has changed a great deal in the past two or three years," she remarked. "Some of it has to do with what happens when you have a certain success, like 'Downtown.' Suddenly you have enough confidence to let yourself go, to relax and perform the way you would like to."

"But I think the change in my style began even before 'Downtown.' It really started when I spent some time singing in France."

The singer is married to a Frenchman, Claude Wolfe, and until recently they and their two children made their home in Paris. Now they reside in Geneva "because privacy isn't respected in France any more," as well as for tax advantages.

"Singing in France was especially good for my style," Petula said. "The French aren't very musical; they care more about the lyric than the melody. For that reason there aren't many good singers in France, but there are many excellent performers who know how to interpret songs. They seem to know how to get inside the meaning of the words."

"The simple matter of singing is only part of it. Anyone with a fair amount of voice can sing. The difference is in how you deliver the lyrics. That's what sets people like Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett apart from the others. They seem able to digest their songs."

"If a singer can touch the audience, not only musically but with the meaning of a song as well, that's the real thrill."

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, APRIL 8 — Born today, you are an excellent conversationalist, knowing how to draw others out even as you yourself take over a subject and make it your own. Your knowledge is not complete by any means — but your manner of expressing yourself, your humor and wit, and your obvious confidence in the correctness of what you say, makes your listeners aware only of mastery, never of the gaps. Take care, however, that you don't begin to believe too strongly in your own publicity.

One who looks upon life seriously, you nevertheless usually take pains to hide your concern about things. You would prefer that others think of you as one who takes things as they come, understanding them but not being bothered, upset, or otherwise disturbed about them. Many think of you as a devil-may-care individual with a bright mind and a facile tongue — and you really prefer it this way.

In your dealings with others you are honest and aboveboard. It is not in your nature to attempt to make gains on another's expense — which is not to say that you are not fond of gain. You will succeed wherever you can — but only if no one else is harmed by you in the process. The underdog of any situation appeals to you and he, least of all, you wish to hurt.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Wednesday, April 9
ARIES (March 21-April 20) — Develop new ideas without further delay. There may be those who are trying to beat you to the draw where progress is concerned.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — Cease your restless search for new and different activities. Do well with those in which you are already involved.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Now is the time to let your natural aggressions guide your activities. Forceful action takes the prizes.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — Creative touches make an outstanding project out of an ordinary one. Don't be hesitant about demonstrating originality.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — Turn your attention to those with troubles more complex, more lasting than yours. Dwell less upon your own circumstances.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — A day for cultural activities. Make a visit to a museum, an art gallery, etc. Develop your taste as well as your career.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — Social engagements for the weekend must be planned for well in advance. Time now to indulge in a favorite avocation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — An extremely slim margin for error requires that you make today's decisions with the utmost care.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Take stock of yourself and your behavior within the home. Self-improvement brings improvement to the domestic scene.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) — It is possible that your thoughts grow too large for the present project. Small concerns require small-scale planning.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — Though you may be tempted to give vent to feelings or irritation, you would be wise to keep temper in check.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21) — Your ability to organize others into working units should see gains for all by evening. Exert a quiet force.

Longer Remissions For Hodgkin's Victims

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

A mother writes that her daughter, 11, has had reticulum cell sarcoma for a year. She is taking methotrexate and nitrogen mustard and seems to be doing well. This mother wonders what the future holds for her daughter. Unfortunately, this condition, also known as Hodgkin's disease, has always proved fatal in the past but great strides are being made in both prolonging the life of its victims and in adding to their comfort. X-ray treatments applied early in the course of the disease, before it has spread throughout the lymphatic system, are very helpful, as are the two drugs mentioned.

Q—What is a lymphoma in a child? Is there any cure for it?

A—Lymphoma or Hodgkin's disease is a form of cancer that chiefly affects the lymph nodes. Marked improvement and prolonging the life of the child can be achieved with appropriate treatment but no cure has yet been found.

Q—In a recent column you spoke of a girl, 10, who refused to eat meat. I know a boy about the same age who refused to eat chicken after having seen for her daughter. Unfortunately, one killed. Why must children be told about killing and preparation of meat?

A—This is a hard question to answer in a day that will fit all children. Most farm children, who were brought up in the days when a farmer slaughtered at least some of his livestock, early in life became accustomed to this without developing any emotional problem, possibly because they identified with a warm and loving father instead of the chicken.

At what age a city child may be considered old enough to learn about the sources of his animal food I can't say. But I think it should be broken to him gently, gradually filling in the details, if he shows an interest, as he grows older.

Q—My granddaughter, 3, says only a few words and no complete sentences. She can hear what you say if she can see your lips but, if her back is turned, she does not hear you. Three doctors say they don't know what is causing her hearing problem. What do you advise?

A—Your granddaughter's deafness is not complete but it should be investigated by an ear specialist. When she is ready to enter school, she may have to attend a special class for the hard of hearing.

No Television

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—South Africa's chances of getting television in the next few years dipped sharply when Posts and Telegraphs Minister Basie van Rensburg said the government will not allow TV because it is a "harmful influence" on young people and would be costly to introduce. South Africa, the richest nation in Africa, is one of the few industrialized countries in the world without television.

Some Day We'll All Be Uniform

By BETTY CANARY

The news that most members of the police force in Toms River, N.J., will be issued uniforms featuring the new non-authority-figure look took the National Society of Image-makers by surprise. Nervous coughing followed by groans of dismay sounded throughout their conference room when they learned that the town had started outfitting the men in gray flannels, blue blazers and button-down collars.

"It's disgraceful, that's what it is,"

"I see it as a step in the right direction," I demurred. "I understand they are already experiencing better rapport with the public."

"What's disgraceful is that a little town like that should come up with the idea! Think of our reputation!"

"I understand," I said. "Really, you should have thought of it when the hippies working for the Los Angeles post office refused to wear the uniform."

"Obviously, the Ivy League look is what policemen need in order to do the man-of-peace routine."

"True," I said. "I understand the police chief there said most of their calls are from people requesting help, so he sees no reason for the police to be out-fitted for war."

"It's the old policeman-is-my-friend routine," he said.

"Of course, when they need an authority-figure, it will only take 30 seconds to convert," I explained. "Each officer will also carry a jump suit with Police marked on the back."

"We should have thought of it," he moaned. "Why didn't we think of it when we came up with the idea of separates for airline stewardesses? It's the old dress-for-the-occasion routine."

"I sympathize with you," I said, trying to soothe him. "But, it won't be too long until you will have all the politicians as clients again. It takes a lot of imagination and work to change some of those images."

"That's right," he conceded. "And, in the meantime, just think of what you might do with all the other people wearing uniforms in this country."

"The gray-flannel look at gasoline stations?" he asked thoughtfully.

"That's the idea!"

"The Edwardian look for milkmen?"

"Good for you!"

"The meter readers... all of THEM!" he cried, rubbing his hands together. "Oh, we definitely can do something for them!"

"Sure you can."

"After all, who could object to having their lights turned off by someone in maybe pale blue satin with an Apache scarf?"

"That's a far cry from that grimly efficient look they have now!" I agreed.

"And there are the bank tellers," he cried joyfully, "and the garbage tipsters and the television newsmen and the usherettes and the carhops at the drive-ins and..."

Stops Draft From Door With Homemade Roll

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Recently I discovered a draft coming in under a door and remembered the sand roll my grandmother used to use. I cut a piece of old carpet about nine inches wide and slightly longer than the width of the door, sewed the long sides together and then sewed a circle of felt, about 3½ inches in diameter, to one end. When this was turned right side out it made a roll which I filled with chopped foam. I then firmly blind-stitched another felt circle to the open end. This roll fits snugly against the door. When the door is opened it rolls lightly out of the way.—MRS. E.J.W.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have a picture printed on velvet that is beautiful but it is old. The velvet is split in one place and gradually getting worse. What can I do to strengthen the velvet so it will not fall completely to pieces? Would it help to shellac the back? I hope someone can tell me what to do.—MRS. H.S.

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for mothers who do not have close neighbors to rely on in an emergency. My children are too young to look up telephone numbers to call for help. I took some snapshots of close relatives, pasted them on a blank sheet of paper and put it in the front of the telephone book. Next to each picture I wrote that relative's number in large, clear print.—CHARLENE

DEAR GIRLS—How about adding a magazine picture of a policeman and one of a fire engine with the proper numbers by them?—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Before I store my good company glasses on the top cupboard shelf, I put a small plastic bag over each glass to prevent grease and dust from settling on them. When company is expected, the glasses are ready to use without washing.—VERNA

SOYBEANS ADVANCE ON BOARD OF TRADE

CHICAGO (AP) — A rally in the closing minutes, and a flurry of short covering, sent soybeans futures prices ahead by 2 1/2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

In the last few seconds, however, a wave of profit taking cut the advance almost in half.

The buying of soybeans stimulated activity of a similar nature in the wheat pit, where prices had been as much as 1 1/2 cents under previous closes. Some buying on a smaller scale also showed up at the close in the other pits.

At the close, wheat was 3/4 to 1/2 cent a bushel lower, May 1.26 3/4; corn was unchanged to 1/4 higher, May 1.17; oats were unchanged to 1/4 lower, May 66 1/2 cents; rye was unchanged to 1/4 lower, May 1.17 1/2; and soybeans were 1/4 to 1/2 higher, May 2.6 1/2.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If you really want to impress guests at your daughter's wedding reception you might consider renting a champagne bubbler and a pair of ornate, five-branch silver candelabra. The total cost will be about $25.

Nobody but you will know the difference. And so, for no more than it would cost you and your spouse for a night on the town, a mere passing pleasure, you will have bought the permanent envy of your social competitors. Such motives can't be discounted, but the $1 billion-a-year rental equipment industry, which boasts that it can rent you not just party goods but almost everything under the sun, believes it is far more soundly based.

The industry spread eastward gradually from the West Coast shortly after World War II.

Only in the past few years has it attained strong growth along the Eastern seaboard. A typical general rental store, founded perhaps 20 years ago as a mom-and-pop operation, might find itself handling the following orders in the next few weeks and months:

— Supplying chairs, banquet tables, a bar, linen, china, glassware, silverware, a champagne fountain, coffee urns and incidental items for a graduation party of 50. One estimate of the cost: well under $200.

— Providing the equipment for homeowners to spruce up property. This might include tractors, power rakes and tillers for the lawn, and rug and floor care equipment for inside the house.

For a power rake, such as now being used on spring lawns, the charge might be $12 a half day or $19 a day from one firm. The same company charges $9 a day for a floor sander, one of its most popular items.

In almost every instance it is clear why people rent instead of buy.

The purchase price is too much, the item is not used often enough to justify purchase, the customer could not possibly service the item, or it simply could not be stored on the customer's premises.

But other factors make rentals, expanding at about 15 to 20 per cent a year, one of the fastest growing service industries. Among the factors:

— A rise in home ownership, along with a tendency of middle income homeowners to use their properties not just for shelter but for entertainment.

— The growth in leisure time, as more workers enjoy 37 1/2-hour weeks, and increasingly work only 35 hours and even 30 hours.

— The continuing popularity of the do-it-yourself attitude, especially as the cost of professional home maintenance rises sharply.

If you exclude the revenue from rental cars—estimated to number about 250,000—the entire industry is believed to have revenues of at least $1 billion. It is so multifarious, however, that statistics sometimes are misleading.

Essentially, however, it remains an industry of individuals. Pat McMahon of Bayside, N.Y., might be typical. He began his company 15 years ago with $7,000 of tools.

Because business was slack in winter, McMahon added a party line, and now does a thriving late fall and early winter business. He still heads his operation, which now rents $250,000 to $300,000 of stock.

His annual gross revenue is about $350,000 he states, of which about 8 per cent is profit. And among the most profitable days, he feels are those coming up.

Income Protection Benefits In S.S.

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

His wife and the surgeon, together, gave Ted Harrison the bad news. The injuries he had received in his auto accident would leave him with both legs and right arm paralyzed — totally disabled and, at age 25, with a promising career in a printing company once ahead of him, now unable to work for the rest of his life.

"I wish I'd been killed in the accident," he bitterly told the doctor afterward. "Janet would at least have collected some insurance. This way, she gets nothing but a helpless expense. Why didn't you let me die?"

It turned out to be not quite that bad because Ted Harrison, like most family breadwinners, was unaware that he was covered by some fairly liberal disability insurance—one of the lesser known benefits of the Social Security program.

The Harrison family, for example, will receive for as long as Ted lives nearly $200 a month as the disability income for which his earnings had qualified him.

Any worker covered by Social Security, if totally disabled at whatever age, receives the same monthly income that he'd get if he were 65 years old and retiring.

The amount varies according to past earnings—and, to some extent, with age because of the formula for calculating average earnings. The typical worker who has been earning the maximum subject to Social Security tax—it was raised to $7,800 last year—would qualify at present for $168 a month. But it can go up to $218 a month for young men who have had a short history of maximum earnings.

"Men in their early 20s, disabled in the Vietnam fighting, who have been drawing officer's or top enlisted man's pay, are examples of those who will soon be getting the $218 maximum payment," says Alfred Francfort, the New York representative for Social Security. "We have a number of such cases in this region."

That much life income is the equivalent of a substantial amount of commercial insurance. Given the life expectancy of a 22-year-old disabled worker or serviceman, it amounts to total payments of around $217,000, and it would take about $37,000 worth of life insurance.

to provide that much income from policy proceeds.

Knowing that you have this kind of income protection available as a Social Security benefit can throw quite a different light on planning the family's insurance needs. Building on this base, the cost of providing adequate income in case of disability isn't nearly so formidable as it otherwise appears. At Ted Harrison's age, for example, about $25 a year in additional insurance premiums, as the cost of disability-income riders on his life policies, could have given the family an income of about $100 a week.

Any planning of a family insurance program should be built on the base of Social Security benefits, which are far from being limited to old age. Young widows and surviving children, for example, can receive up to $434 a month.

Any well-trained insurance man can show the family how to determine the insurance potential of its benefits and plan a complete family protection program around them. As a beginning, get a post card from your local Social Security office that you can use to request a statement of your account. The reply will show your average earnings, and from this you can determine exactly the income the family would receive in case of death or disability.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated sharply over a wide front Monday as investors worried about the administration's latest moves to cool the economy and curb inflation.

"It looks like it's going to be caution, caution, caution, for a while," an analyst said.

What concerned investors, brokers said, was the action by the Federal Reserve to increase the discount rate to 6 per cent from 5 1/2 per cent and to increase by $650 million the amount of money member banks will be required to hold in reserve.

The Fed acted Thursday after the market closed. The market was closed Good Friday, and Monday was the first trading day since the Fed's announcement.

The Dow Jones industrial average slipped from the start and at one point was off more than 9 points. It pared that slightly, however, and closed at 918.78 for a loss of 8.52 points. The dip continued the trend set last week when the Dow lost a total of 8.18 points in three trading days. The market had closed Monday in respect for the memory of former President Eisenhower, as well as on Good Friday.

Losses led gains from the opening, and the margin widened as trading wore on. Of 1,580 issues traded, 1,069 declined, and 308 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 15 and new lows 180.

Volume was 9.43 million shares, compared with 10.3 million Thursday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 2.1 at 332.4, with industrials off 4.0, rails off .9, and utilities off .2.

Conglomerates generally were off, with AMK Corp. losing 1 1/2. Jones & Laughlin Steel gained 1/2, although other steel issues were lower. Motors were lower except for Chrysler, which gained 1/2. Aircrafts, electronics, and utilities were mostly lower.

Among higher-priced issues, du Pont was off 1 1/4; Control Data, off 3/4; and IBM, off 3/4. Fourteen of the 20 most-active stocks on the New York exchange were lower, 4 were higher, and 2 were unchanged.

Fourteen of the 20 most-active stocks on the American Stock Exchange were lower, 5 were higher, and 1 was unchanged.

Volume was four million shares, compared with 3.58 million Thursday.

REITHER

on Beardstown

By Virgil Reither

BEARDSTOWN — Latin as a high school subject will be phased out in Beardstown, with additional classes in Spanish and French to replace it, as a result of action by the local school board.

Supt. Herbert Darnell suggested this change and the board approved, reasoning that Latin is a "dead" language and recognizing that teachers of Latin are increasingly difficult to "find."

Second year Latin will be offered at the high school for the benefit of those taking first year Latin this year, but first year Latin will not be a part of the curriculum next year.

Effective next year a third year Spanish course will be offered, and fourth year Spanish will be added the following year. Third year French is also to be offered.

Teachers Resign
Principal Jerome Kalk has resigned his position at Beardstown high school, and others who have resigned include Rebecca Magalhães and Naomi Markille, the latter is retiring from teaching.

Among transfers will be that of George Boyd, who will teach sixth grade at Brick school. The school board has also approved a flat $300 salary increase to make the schedule in local schools competitive.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacCinchie spent an Easter holiday with her mother, Mrs. L. G. Schaeffer, and Helen—the MacCinchies still live in Michigan where he was an administrator at Olivet College until two years ago. Then he went back to college for some refresher courses and is now teaching in the high school—science and math. Kay is in the English Department and both report being appreciative for their satisfying and productive stations in the small town school. Bob has one career in the state department behind him.

Dick Harmon, local fireman, has submitted to surgery for a nagging back ailment and is reportedly making a fine recovery in a Springfield hospital.

From our reportorial aide: Lloyd Phelps says Frank H. Trussell, George Boyd, Bob Kramer and Tom Finnigan have enjoyed a safari through Florida—Boyd drove his Caddie.

Potpourri: Jewel Wessel, who is among Beardstown's foremost bass fishermen, comes in with a report of snagging a six-pounder the other day. That's a good bass!

Quite a number of people saw the light of day or pre-dawn around 4 a.m. Friday when they climbed out to prepare for the early morning Good Friday Breakfast and services at the Methodist church.

Local Lutherans held their annual Sunrise service at the drive-in theater and then had breakfast at the church.

Tax assessors in Cass county have received their annual briefing from county and state authorities and are about ready to begin the job of listing personal and real estate billings for the taxpayers.

Meanwhile the possibility that a supervisor of assessments may be provided in the future is being given consideration. Mrs. Pauline Holland, assessment consultant for the State Department of Revenue, and other experts joined with county elective officials to give assessors the lowdown at a meeting in Virginia.

Fair and equitable appraisals will be the goal of all county assessors, and to this end schedules have been listed to indicate rates on various kinds of property.

Personal property will be assessed as of April 1 and real estate as of January 1. All real estate will be assessed at 40 percent of the actual market value. The dog tax will be $1 for male and $3 for female and $20 for a kennel of less than 20 animals.

Cattle will be assessed at 10 cents a pound, with milch cows and stock $60 a head. Pure bred cattle will be listed at $135 a head; horses, $50; ponies, $25; mules, $25; goats, $7.50; corn, 40 cents a bushel; alfalfa $7 per ton.

The minimum total assessment was placed at $50. Gilbert Lebkuecher, chairman of the board of supervisors; A. C. Schuetter, chairman of the board of review; Gus Carls, county clerk, assisted during the meeting.

The Beardstown high school student council has submitted to the board of education a proposed "dress code" which would bar dresses and skirts so short that "underwear shows when girls are sitting or standing." Other suggestions include hair must be clean and neat and must not be combed over the eyes.

No hair over ears or collars for the boys.

Sideburns are allowed but must not grow into beards or mustaches.

Belts must be worn on clothing having belt loops, shirt tails must be tucked in and socks must be worn in most cases.

The student council proposed warnings for the violators, and eventually to have students who do not adhere to the code sent home to change their clothing.

The board of education took no action regarding the code at the meeting this week.

Scholarships
Cindy Lawson, B.H.S. valedictorian for this year and Ron Hartung, an honor student, have been named as winners of scholarships on the basis of scores made in recent ACT examinations.

Winners will be exempted from paying certain tuition fees in state supported colleges and universities.

Spelling Bee
Jim Fisher, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Fisher of Virginia, won first place in the 26th annual Spelling Bee held at the Virginia high school Thursday.

Leesa Carls of Arenzville was second; Russell Morton of Ashland, third; and Brian Woolley of Beardstown, fourth.

BEARDSTOWN — Although not one of the seven Japanese business men who spent Monday through Thursday last week in Beardstown is a hog raiser, it was hogs from the cradle to sausage that interested the visitors most in this area.

They were guests of the Beardstown Rotary club Monday night at the regular meeting here, and since then have toured the Beardstown area in their efforts to learn about the "entertainment."

Four of the visitors were housed in Beardstown, two in Rushville and two in Mt. Sterling, since the Rotarians of those two towns cooperated in the "entertainment."

On Wednesday the men were taken through the expansive Oscar Mayer & Company facility here where 6000 swine are slaughtered daily and where more than 600 persons are now employed.

Previously they saw Bartlow's setup in Rushville and visited the farms of Daryle Pilger, John Rolf and Wilburn Briney where hogs are raised in large numbers.

Dal Welborne, Peter Hartung, Nels Glesne and William Richter hosted the seven at dinner one night this week and after one of the visitors had asked about "corn on the cob" arrangements were made to serve the delicacy, although out of season, at a later meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Nels Glesne hosted the 7 at dinner in their home Wednesday night and on Thursday they were scheduled to go the Jacksonville.

Scoutmaster Art Gramann is very proud of the showing made by two Troop 120 patrols at a district First Aid Meeting in Jacksonville. The Eager Beaver and Silver Wing patrols scored high — 88 points out of 100 for the Eager Beavers to score first place and 86 out of 100 for the Silver Wings, also for a number one rating.

Participating were Jay Brown, Murray Elliott, John Gramann, Jack Hageman, Kenney Langdon, Mark Snelling, Rich Stambaugh, Clay Brown, Greg Meyer, Greg Painter and Delbert Stephenson.

David Gramann and ASM Dick Snelling assisted in running the program. Transportation was furnished by Earl Brown, Richard Stambaugh and Scoutmaster Art.

Potpourri: Bud Howe now becomes Beardstown's Senior Barber which means he is the barber with the "most whiskers."

From the Central Illinoisian—100 years ago: Dr. Whitney of this city has applied for a patent on his steam cultivator, designed for the more rapid, easy and successful cultivation of corn fields. On paper the principle looks practical and useful.

Also: The paper on which this edition is printed was manufactured at the Beardstown paper mill. We do not make this notice with the desire to set forth that this paper is superior. It is not up to par, since the bleaching is not too good.

But we have used paper in the past even darker in color. Wheat is not arriving too fast but our mills are grinding regularly — on new wheat and have reduced flour to the very small sum of ten dollars.

Fred and Irene Schroll of Beardstown were written up in a very complimentary manner in the latest newsletter published by the United Founders Life Insurance people of Oklahoma City.

The Schrolls won the first Founders' Friend of the Month award among stockholders and policy holders in Illinois, and as a result they have the use of a 1969 Pontiac Catalina for a month. The account in the Newsletter lists the family's activities here and displays a couple of pictures.

The Schrolls are back on duty at Clines following a pre-Easter vacation at their new three bedroom home on THAT island in Florida. Nice tans all!

TODAY'S THOUGHT
By BILL BUCHANAN

Have you ever noticed those who think twice before making a promise can usually be counted on to keep the promise? Careless promises should never be given — or counted on. A promise is a pledge; an obligation to be kept. A promise that can cause discomfort, harm or injustice to yourself — or to others — should never be made, no matter how much prodding or persuasion is involved. Common sense should tell us the more we are promised, the less we should expect.

It is usually very easy to make a promise. Expediency or change of mind is seldom a justified excuse for breaking a promise. A promise involves honor, duty and ethics. The best promise you can make — is a promise to yourself. Promise yourself you will never make a promise to any one, unless you are fully prepared and able to keep your promise. In addition to spiritual benefit, it is a good way to gain honor, stature, praise and prestige among men.

Alexander Resident Electrocuted Sunday; Companion Burned

A 47-year-old Alexander man was electrocuted and a companion burned in an attempt to relocate a television antenna Sunday morning.

Robert Lee Flynn, 47, of Alexander was pronounced dead on arrival at Passavant hospital at 10:20 a.m.

A companion, Gary Coker, also of Alexander, was treated and released for burns to the hands caused by the electrical shock. Coker was stunned for several minutes.

Another companion, Ray Flynn, cousin of the deceased, escaped injury in the incident.

The three men were attempting to move a TV antenna from one end of a building to another at the east edge of Alexander on property owned by Dale Rowden.

Coker told authorities that the long steel pole "got away from them" and fell across highlines owned by CIPS.

Coroner John B. Martin and Sheriff Dean Colwell investigated the incident. Sheriff Colwell said the ground was wet and the insulation on the wires frayed. Flynn received the full charge of electricity. Coker was burned and knocked into a nearby ditch.

Flynn was rushed to the hospital by Lowe ambulance. Coker was taken to the hospital by friends.

Coroner Martin said an inquest would be held later.

Mr. Flynn was born at Alexander April 12, 1921, the son of James and Louise Worley Flynn. He was married to Rose Bertram. Four children of this union survive their father: Terry Lee, Gerry D., Donald LeRoy and Mary Darlene, all of Pekin.

These brothers and sisters survive: Charles of Pekin; James and George of Jacksonville; Mrs. Frances Dobson, New Berlin; Mrs. Mabel Bryant, Springfield; and Jesse Flynn, Ashland.

The deceased was a truck driver by occupation. He was a veteran of World War Two, having served in the U.S. Army.

The remains were taken to the Williamson Funeral Home where the family will meet friends 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

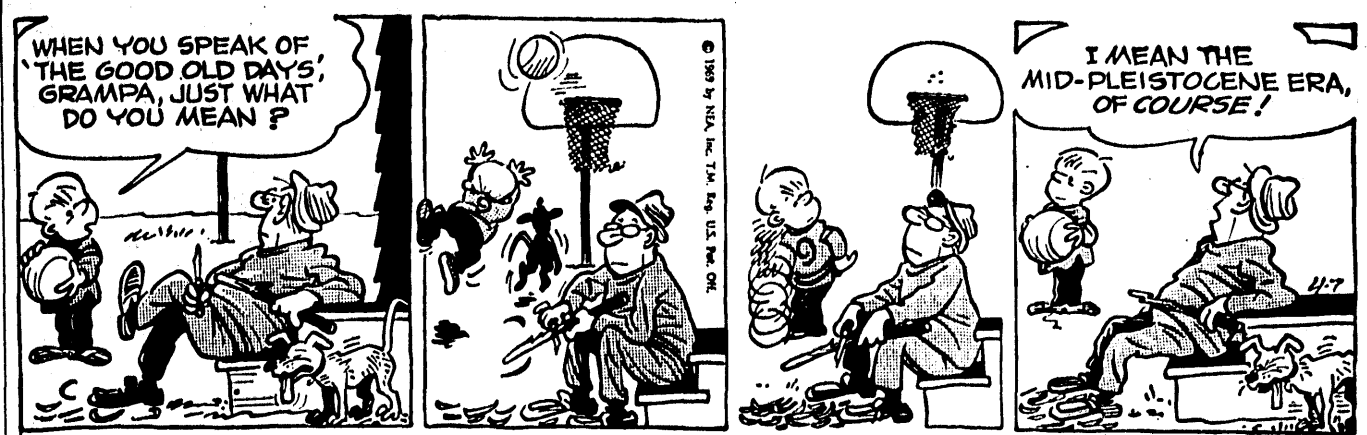

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the funeral home with Rev. William J. Boston officiating. Interment will be in Camp Butler Military cemetery, east of Springfield.</

"Mary Lincoln"

Historical Society's Program For April 10

"Mary Lincoln" is the subject of the program to be presented by Bruce E. Wheeler at the Spring dinner-meeting of the Morgan County Historical Society, to be held at Hamilton's restaurant at six o'clock Thursday evening, April 10.

Mary Lincoln has been called "our most controversial first lady." It has been pointed out that there is a great deal of information and understanding about President Lincoln's life and activities, but Mrs. Lincoln is somewhat of an enigma to many people. There are those who think Mary Lincoln led a useful and helpful life, and there are those, like Herndon, who take a different view. Mr. Wheeler has studied her biography carefully in order to try to understand the real Mrs. Lincoln. In his talk he will touch upon her childhood in Lexington and her life in Springfield, but the main story will deal with her activities while in Washington and after her husband's death.

Bruce E. Wheeler was assistant Superintendent of Schools in Springfield for twelve years and Acting Superintendent for two years. At present he serves on the staff of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as Director of Special Claims. He and Mrs. Wheeler now live in Jacksonville on Goltz avenue. He is an ardent collector of Lincoln and Civil War items.

A. John Pearson, the newly elected president of the Morgan County Historical Society, will preside over the meeting. The Rev. Richard L. Stanger, MacMurray College Chaplain, will offer the invocation. Dr. Alfred J. Henderson, immediate past president of the Society, will present the speaker.

All interested members of the community are most welcome to attend this meeting. Reservations for the dinner at 6 p.m. sharp should be made with the secretary of the Society, Miss Ruth Bailey, 1005 Grove street (telephone 243-2923) by Wednesday, April 9.

Holkenbrink Issues Police Training Report

Jacksonville Mayor Byron Holkenbrink, chairman of the Illinois Local Governmental Law Enforcement Officers Training Board, said that as of March 1, 254 municipalities and 22 counties have passed the necessary resolutions to participate in the benefits of the Illinois Police Training Act.

Mayor Holkenbrink said that nearly all cities in Illinois with a population in excess of 5,000 are now training their police under this state-municipal matching fund program.

Holkenbrink said, according to Executive Director Mervin G. O'Melia, that 5,910 law enforcement officers have received training since the first approved session was held at the Police Training Institute (PTI) at the University of Illinois in the early summer of 1966. Two Jacksonville officers are graduates of this session.

The hub of the state-assisted program for training local police officers is the PTI. "This agency has done a tremendous job in supplying the needs in not only the basic recruit training, but in many advanced and specialized areas as well," Holkenbrink added.

The mayor said that since 1966, "all new recruit officers of the Jacksonville police department have graduated from the PTI and that many other officers have graduated from advanced and specialized training courses given by the organization."

DISORDERLY CHARGE

Walk And Allen Are Early Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Phoenix Suns, losers to Milwaukee last month in the coin flip for the draft, selected 6-foot-10 Neal Walk of the University of Florida as the National Basketball Association's No. 2 pick at Monday's telephone draft session in the offices of Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy.

Phoenix kicked off the draft of college seniors after the formality of Milwaukee's drafting of Alcindor had been observed. The 7-foot-1 UCLA All-American was signed by the Bucks last week for a reported $1.4 million package.

Following the selection of Walk, a 20-year-old pivotman also picked No. 2 in the rival American Basketball Association draft, the Seattle SuperSonics tabbed 6-foot-2 Lucius Allen, Alcindor's teammate at UCLA for two seasons who left school before his senior year.

Then, in order, The Detroit Pistons picked 6-foot-7 Terry Driscoll of Boston College, the Chicago Bulls chose 6-foot-5 Larry Cannon of LaSalle and the San Diego Rockets selected 6-foot-5 Bobby "Bingo" Smith of Tulsa.

Completing the first round picks were Bob Portman of Creighton, by San Francisco; Herman Gilliam of Purdue, by Cincinnati; Olympic star Jo Jo White of Kansas, by Boston; Butch Beard of Louisville, by Atlanta; John Warren of St. John's, by New York; Willie McCarter of Drake, by Los Angeles; Bud Ogden of Santa Clara, by Philadelphia, and Mike Davis of Virginia Union, by Baltimore.

Los Angeles, awarded a bonus pick at the conclusion of the first round as compensation for the loss of Rudy LaRusso two years ago, chose 6-foot-9 Rick Roberson of the University of Cincinnati.

The second round went like this:

Chicago (from Phoenix), Simmie Hill, West Texas State; Milwaukee, Bob Greacen, Rutgers; Seattle, Ron Taylor, Southern California; Detroit, Willie Norwood, Alcorn A&M; Chicago, Ken Spain, Houston; San Diego, Bernie Williams, LaSalle; San Francisco, Ed Studdt, Holy Cross.

Chicago from Philadelphia John Baum, Temple; Phoenix from Boston, Gene Williams, Kansas State; Atlanta, Wally Anderzunas, Creighton; New York, Bill Bunting, North Carolina; Los Angeles, Dick Garrett, Southern Illinois; Philadelphia, Willie Taylor, Lemoyne, Tenn.; Baltimore, Willie Sacott, Alabama State.

The first two rounds, involving 29 players, were completed via telephone hook-ups to the 14 league cities, in 22 minutes. The remainder of the draft will be held May 7.

'Invalids' Picked To Claim Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A tuneup 63 by sore-back Arnold Palmer and a 67 by allergy-ridden Bill Casper brought a new wave of support to a pair of old favorites Monday at the launching of Masters week.

"Beware of the sick man," warned little Gary Player of South Africa, a former winner, as full-scale practice began for the 33rd Masters Golf Tournament, the so-called invalid open, starting Thursday.

"You have to watch these fellows with aches and pains. In worrying about their troubles, they tend not to get too tense about their golf games and give great performances," Player added.

"I say, Casper and Palmer—and Jack Nicklaus—are the men to beat."

Palmer, winner of four titles, shot a 32-31—63 over the 6,980-yard, par 36—72 Augusta National Course last Friday in one of his three practice rounds. His other scores were a pair of 69s.

"It's the best round I ever had over this course," Palmer said. "I am hitting the ball much better. If everything holds together, I may get it going again."

"My sore back hasn't bothered me much. I'm keeping my fingers crossed. I get nervous when I think about winning a fifth Masters."

The Masters competitive record is 64, shared by Nicklaus and Lloyd Mangrum.

Casper, pro golfer of the year in 1968, is just snapping out of an allergy attack that sidelined him 10 days ago in Miami.

"Two of my fingers are numb and my feet became infected," the Mormon lay minister from San Diego, said. "I played terribly on my first two rounds here. I had a 70 and 74, then today I got a 67."

Miller Barber, the dark-horse pick of many of the competitors, and dandy Doug Sanders joined the list of cripples.

Barber turned up with a swollen left thumb—the result of gout—and Sanders suffered a kink in his back, forcing him out of the tournament at Greensboro, N. C., last week. Sanders is undergoing treatment here.

Lee Trevino said his left thumb, jammed into a door before the start of the National Airlines Tournament in Miami, had healed sufficiently and he was charged up for his second shot at the Masters title. He finished 40th in 1968.

The 83-man field was completed by the addition of six players who won spots on points based on the PGA winter tour. They are Bob Lunn, Dale Douglass, Ken Still, B. R. McLendon, Deane Beman and R. H. Sikes.

Unsold Adds Top Rookie To Honors

BALTIMORE (AP) — Westley Unseld of the Baltimore Bullets, genuinely unassuming, accepted his latest postseason honor Monday with a minimum of words.

"I'm overwhelmed again," Unseld said when informed he was named Rookie of the Year in the National Basketball Association in a poll of sportscasters and sports writers.

Unseld, who previously was named the NBA's most valuable player in a vote of the players, said "I'd gladly give them both up if we could still be in the playoffs."

The Bullets, last year ago, won the Eastern Division title this season only to lose four straight to the New York Knicks in the division semifinals.

"It has been a great year for me personally," Unseld said, "but it was disappointing to get knocked out of the playoffs."

Unseld, who received an estimated $300,000 for a three-year contract after being drafted No. 1 by the Bullets, will receive $500 for his latest honor.

He polled 53 votes to 25 for San Diego's Elvin Hayes, who led the NBA in scoring with 2,327 points.

Unseld finished second to Wilt Chamberlain among NBA rebounders, snaring 1,491 for an average of 18.2 per game. His scoring average was 13.8.

LOTS OF JONESES

MINNEAPOLIS — (NEA) — Keeping up with the Joneses is no easy job in the American Basketball Association.

Three of the league's top 13 scorers are Joneses. Larry Jones of Denver is third, Jimmy Jones of New Orleans fourth and Steve Jones, also of New Orleans, is 13th.

GRAND SLAM TWINS: John Nesheim (l) and Lon Fulte had the same idea and the same result as undefeated MacMurray ran its record to 7-0 with a twinbill sweep over St. Olaf of Northfield, Minnesota Monday afternoon. Nesheim's grand slam accounted for the difference in a 6-2 nightcap victory after Nesheim connected with three mates on for the deciding runs in the 8-2 victory in the opener.

Rest Of Teams Get Into Action

By The Associated Press

The four new expansion clubs and the 1968 pennant winners join the parade Tuesday as the major league baseball season gets under way on all fronts after Monday's special openers at Washington, Cincinnati and Atlanta.

San Diego and Kansas City will bow in at home but Montreal and Seattle, the other new clubs, open on the road.

The defending world champion Detroit Tigers will send Denny McLain, their 31-game winner, against Cleveland's Luis Tiant at Tiger Stadium. Manager Mayo Smith is expected to send his World Series lineup against the Indians, including Mickey Stanley at shortstop. A crowd of 50,000 is expected.

St. Louis, loser to the Tigers in seven games last October, also will be at home with Bob Gibson, it's ace pitcher, slated to oppose Pittsburgh's Steve Blass at Busch Stadium in a night game.

Both the Tigers and Cardinals must survive 162-regular season races in their own divisions and then an intraleague playoff if they are to qualify for another Series.

Yanks Ruin Debuts By Ted, Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Yankees romped past Washington 8-4 Monday to ruin Ted Williams' debut as manager in the annual American League opener before President Nixon.

Newcomers Jerry Kennedy and Bobby Murcer slammed consecutive home runs as New York raced to an early 8-0 lead. Murcer added a two-run single to cap the Yankees' scoring in the fourth inning when they scored four unearned runs.

Nixon chatted and joked with Williams in the Presidential box before throwing out the first ball—a soft lob—to begin baseball's 100th year.

Mel Stottlemyre, the Yankee's 21-game winner last year, took over from Nixon, allowing 14 hits but keeping the Senators shackled until the game was out of reach. Frank Howard walked a two-run homer for Washington in the ninth.

Williams emerged from the dugout just once for an angry but futile argument with umpires over a dropped pop fly in the midst of the Yankees' fourth-inning outburst.

A record opening day crowd of 45,113 watched the game in newly renamed Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

Nixon, an admitted hometown fan, stayed throughout the three-hour game.

The Senators outlast New York 14-9, but couldn't overcome the big early lead built up by the swift young Yankee.

Stottlemyre went all the way, even though the Senators' Del Unser and Tim Lincecum each dented him for three hits.

Williams, the Hall of Fame hitter who came out of retirement to become the first million-dollar manager, received a standing ovation that exceeded the applause for Nixon when he took the field before the game.

HAND-Y MEN

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Surprisingly, Frank Howard does not have the largest pair of hands on the Washington Senators—his roommate does.

They belong to Catcher Wayne Brescher, a 23-year-old rookie, who is considerably smaller than Howard at 6-2, 210.

Fulte And Nesheim Blast Grand Slams

MacMurray Runs String To 7 Games

Lon Fulte and John Nesheim slammed game-deciding grand slam home runs as undefeated MacMurray ran its record to 7-0 with 8-4 and 6-2 victories over St. Olaf of Minnesota Monday afternoon in the Highlanders' home debut.

Fulte's blast over the right centerfield fence broke a 4-4 deadlock in the fourth inning. Nesheim's shot over the left-field barrier made up a 2-1 deficit in the second inning.

The Highlanders got a pair of route-going pitching performances from Jim Long and Freshman Phil Bennett. Long won the opener, scattering eight hits while fanning eight and walking three. Bennett, after giving up a pair of runs in the opening frame, scattered five hits, fanned five and walked five. Both hurlers stand 2-0 on the season.

MacMurray scored a pair of runs in the first inning of the opener after St. Olaf, now 0-3, jumped in front 2-0. The first of five St. Olaf errors, Nesheim's run-scoring single and Fulte's RBI double knotted the count at 2-2.

Two more runs crossed in the third on three straight walks and a dropped fly in deep center. Tom Couston walked, Scott Murphy reached on an error and Nesheim walked with two out setting the stage for Fulte's slam, only the third hit for the Highlanders.

McCarthy ABA's Coach Of Year

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — James Harrison McCarthy of the New Orleans Buccaneers is the Coach of the Year in the American Basketball Association.

ABA headquarters here announced Monday that McCarthy had topped the balloting conducted among the ABA's 11 coaches. He edged Oakland's Alex Hannum by one point and Indiana's Bob Leonard by three.

The ABA said McCarthy was named on every ballot except his own. McCarthy received 18 points; Hannum, 17; Leonard, 15, and Jim Pollard, Miami, 10.

FIRST BASE ACTION: Bob Freed of St. Olaf is out by a full step at first base as John Nesheim of MacMurray scoops up a low throw. Umpire Bill Gross starts up with the out sign. MacMurray swept a pair of games from the Minnesota visitors Monday, 8-4, and 6-2, running its record to 7-0 for the season.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Walt Frazier, whose proclivity to steal things has made him one of the more watched individuals in the National Basketball Association, has swiped some of Bill Russell's whap.

Russell's whap, of course, is the sound resulting when he swats down an opponent's shot. For years, the Boston Celtics coach has been unofficially recognized as the league's best defensive player.

Now, the 14 NBA coaches have collaborated with NEA and selected an official All-Defensive team, the first ever. In the poll, however, New York's Walt Frazier—not Bill Russell—emerged as the league's top defensive player.

Frazier, 24, a second-year guard from Southern Illinois University, received 25 voting points—two points being awarded for a first team selection and one for a second team choice. He received 12 first-place votes. Russell was second with 20 points.

Another New York player, Dave DeBusschere (17 points), joins San Francisco center Nate Thurmond (15) and Chicago guard Jerry Sloan (14) on the first team.

The second team is comprised of Los Angeles' Rudy LaRusso (12) and Jerry West (9), Atlanta's Bill Bridges (8) and Boston's Tom Sanders (12) and John Havlicek (10).

Easily the youngest member of the team, Frazier's reaction to his selection was natural. He was awed. "Imagine that," he said, absently. "Putting me ahead of Russell."

Frazier was the scourge of the NBA this year—stealing passes, making passes (635 assists), scoring (17.5 a game) and generally creating uproar wherever he ran.

Fellows like Oscar Robertson, Earl Monroe and Dave Bing all formed close relationships with Frazier this year—involuntarily. Like a coiled snake, he lurks inside his sidburns and waits.

"I take a lot of pride in defense," Frazier says. "I work at it. I always watch the ball. There's a lot of anticipation involved. Most of the time when I make a steal, I'm usually out of position."

It is an odd note, but Frazier's biggest break in basketball probably evolved from a misadventure with some school books back at Southern Illinois in 1965.

"I messed up and got myself ineligible because of bad grades," he recalls. "So I spent the whole year practicing against the team on defense. All I played was defense. Every day I'd go to the gym and know I wasn't going to do anything except guard people."

"The coach (Jack Hartman) really stressed defense so I decided that if I was going to do it, then I might as well take pride in it. It's worked out pretty well for me."

It also has worked out well for the Knicks.

Cubs, Phils To Attract Near 35,000

CHICAGO (AP) — It'll be the new look Philadelphia Phillies, sporting their best exhibition record in eight seasons, against the Chicago Cubs Tuesday in a National League opener which could attract a capacity crowd of more than 35,000.

The Phillies came up with a 14-11 preseason record. They will have three rookies in their lineup with slugger Richie Allen shifting to first base and possibly newcomer Deron Johnson at third.

The rookies in the lineup will be Don Money at shortstop, Larry Hise in center field and Don Stone in left field. Stone led the Phillies in the exhibition season with a .455 average while Hise clubbed five homers to lead the team in that department.

On the mound for Philadelphia will be southpaw Chris Short who had a 19-13 mark in 1968. Short will oppose Fergie Jenkins who was 20-15 last season.

The only newcomer in the Cub lineup will be Don Young in center field. Young will start only because Adolfo Phillips suffered a hand injury.

The Cubs had a 13-15 exhibition record. Ron Santo led the club with seven homers while Santo, Randy Hundley, Don Kessinger and Glen Beckert all hit well over 300.

The forecast is for the temperature to reach the high 60s with a chance of showers. Reserved seats have been sold out for weeks and some 22,000 unreserved seats will be on sale Tuesday morning.

Williams Not Disheartened By Opening Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rookie Manager Ted Williams was disappointed but not disheartened Monday after his struggling Washington Senators dropped an 8-4 decision to the New York Yankees in his debut Monday.

"We still had hustle. We kept going. We let them know we were in the game. That's all we could do," the Hall of Famer said after the setback before President Nixon.

The Senators fell behind 8-0 early as the Yankees scored half their runs in a quick outburst after a disputed error by second baseman Tim Lincecum on a pop fly brought Williams out of the dugout for his first argument.

Williams said, "the umpire (Hank Soar) said he thought Cullen dropped the ball. To us, it looked like he caught it but lost it as he turned to throw. It was a judgment call. You can't do anything about it."

Williams smiled and exchanged polite banter with reporters, who asked how he felt as manager now.

"Lousy," Williams said.

Mantle To Make Appearances On 'Game Of Week'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' retired super star, will appear as a frequent guest on pre-game shows before the major league baseball Game of the Week telecast on the National Broadcasting Company.

Chet Simmons, NBC director of sports, announced Monday that Mantle will appear "quite frequently" on the program. He will be interviewed by ex-teammate Tony Kubek on his reaction to developments in baseball. He will do no play-by-play.

Mantle's first appearance will be Saturday before the game between the San Francisco Giants and San Diego Padres at 3 p.m. EST.

9 Lettermen Boost Hopes For Rockets

Nine returning lettermen, including the top hitter and top pitcher, will form the nucleus of this year's Routt baseball club. The Rockets open a 17-game regular season card today with a 4 p.m. PMSC Conference tilt at Perry.

The Rockets turned in a 7-11 slate last season. Leading the list of returning starters from last year are catcher John Costa, who hit well over .400 last year as a junior; and senior hurler Lloyd Krumlauf, who has been the team's top hurler the last two campaigns.

Other regulars back this year are Ed Johnson at second, Ed Tighe at shortstop, Jerry Johnson at third and Bob Bonjean, Don Fuchs and Joe Proffitt, left to right in the outfield.

Junior Ken Cors is the ninth returning letterman. Cors was the number three pitcher as a sophomore.

Most promising among the non-lettermen are outfielders Boyd Farmer and Lou Costa, infielders Steve Kaufmann, Tom Doyle and Dave Eoff and pitchers Jim McNeely and Stan Robinson.

Coach Fred Curtis looks for pitching and defense to be the Rockets' strong points, while improved hitting is the clubs' biggest need at present.

Atlanta Braves rallied for two runs in the ninth inning on Cleto Boyer's single, Sonny Jackson's triple and a single by Mike Lum and nipped San Francisco 5-4 in their National League opener Monday night.

It was the Braves' first opening game victory since they moved to Atlanta from Milwaukee in 1966 and spoiled Clyde King's debut as manager of the Giants.

The decisive ninth wiped out a three-run San Francisco rally in the seventh and pinned the setback on ace reliever Frank Linzy.

The Giants, trailing 3-1, struck for their runs in the seventh on Bobby Etheridge's double. Hal Lanier's single and an error by catcher Bob Tillman, singles by pinch hitter Bob Burda and Willie Mays and Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly after a walk to Bobby Bonds loaded the bases.

Boyer led off the ninth with a single and Bob Didier sacrificed. Jackson then tripled to deep left center for the tying run and scored the winner on Lum's single to left.

Left-hander George Stone, who pitched the ninth for the Braves, was the winner.

Expansion Clubs Courting Imlach, 2 Players Quit
TORONTO (AP) — George "Punch" Imlach, fired Sunday night as general manager-coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs, reportedly was being courted by at least two National Hockey League expansion clubs Monday while a pair of standout players during his turbulent 11-year Toronto reign hung up their skates.

The Minnesota North Stars reportedly offered Imlach the coaching job currently held by general manager Wren Blair and the Pittsburgh Penguins also were rumored interested in the 51-year-old NHL executive as a coaching replacement for George "Red" Sullivan, fired last month.

Toronto has named John McLellan, coach of its Tulsa farm club in the Central League, and scout Jim Gregory to replace Imlach as coach and general manager, respectively.

Meanwhile, goalie Johnny Bowser, 44, and defenseman Tim Horton, 39, who helped Imlach's Leafs capture the Stanley Cup four times and reach the post-season playoffs in all but one season under his direction, announced their retirement.

Several other aging members of the one-time Imlach dynasty — including team captain George Armstrong — were expected to call it quits following the club's collapse against the Bruins and Imlach's ouster.

Horton said Imlach's release figured in their decisions to retire.

Rindt Captures Formula 2 Title
THRUXTON, Eng. (AP) — Jochen Rindt of Austria, driving a Lotus four, won the International Formula Two race here Monday, climbing through the field to take the lead at the half-way point before a holiday crowd of 45,000.

Rindt won the final in great style to repeat his victory of last year.

A puncture in his heat earlier in the day meant the Austrian had to start the final from the back of the 28-car grid.

As he climbed to the front, Rindt repeatedly lowered his own circuit record of 111.6 miles per hour, his ultimate best being 114.62 mph.

Drivers from eight nations took part in the event, which was run in two heats of 15 laps and a final race of 50 laps.

Rindt covered the 118 mile final in 1:02:44.6 to win at an average speed of 114.6 mph.

Major Leagues Mark 'Second' Centennial

By FRANK ECK
AP Newfeatures Sports Editor
For the second time in its history major league baseball is celebrating a centennial year and you will find some historians saying (a) the 100th birthday is one year too late (b) 30 years too late (c) 40 years too late, or (d) the true centennial in sports really belongs to football.

No one around today actually can tell you when the first game of baseball was played. The game is supposed to have been brought to America from England in the 1700s when it was called rounders. And that was long before Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes told of playing a game of baseball at Harvard in 1829.

Baseball celebrated its first centennial 30 years ago with the dedication of the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., where in 1839 Abner Doubleday, a 19-year-old West Point Cadet, laid out the first baseball field.

The National League Green Book is calling this professional baseball's 100th year and its cover contains prints of 10 men — some in beards and mustaches — who played in

Eisenhower Influenced By Little Known General

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

The decisive influence in Dwight D. Eisenhower's life as a professional soldier is a man whose name is little known to day, Gen. Fox Conner.

"He was my teacher," Eisenhower often said.

In fact, Conner was his commanding officer in the 1920's. In calling him "my teacher," Eisenhower meant that Conner broadened his understanding of the relation between war and geopolitics, revived an interest in military history that had been stifled in West Point, and introduced him to what Eisenhower called "the great world of writing and thinking."

To the end of his days, Eisenhower revered Gen. Conner. Their relationship constitutes one of the warmest and most touching chapters in Eisenhower's story.

They met in 1921 at Camp Meade, Md. Eisenhower, then a major, was enrolled in the Infantry Tank School there. (He graduated with an "A.") One day, he was introduced to a tall, slim Mississippian, Conner. Eisenhower noted on the general's tunic the Purple Heart, symbol of a combat wound, and the Distinguished Service Medal. They had a brief discussion about tanks and tactics. That was all. Even so, something about Eisenhower evidently impressed

Conner. When he became commander of the 20th Infantry Brigade at Camp Gaillard in the Panama Canal Zone, he asked the War Department to assign Eisenhower to his staff as his senior aide.

Eisenhower and Mamie sailed for the Canal Zone Jan. 7, 1922. Conner frequently invited Eisenhower to his quarters and Eisenhower was immediately struck by the general's library. Naturally, it was weighted on the side of military subjects. However, he noted that the shelves were filled with everything from Shakespeare and Plato to the latest fiction as well.

Eisenhower had an inherent taste for history, but the method of teaching in West Point had all but extinguished it. The cadets were required to learn by rote the names of every general officer in the Battle of Gettysburg, for example, and where each was operating at a given hour, etc. Memorizing military history bored Eisenhower.

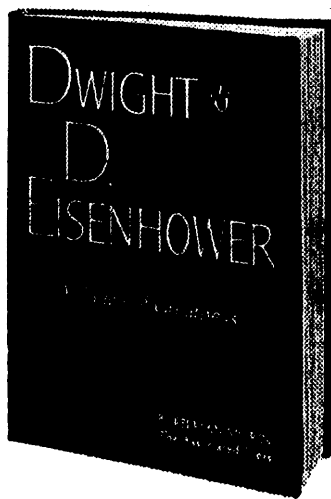

Conner discovered this. He began Eisenhower's re-education by encouraging him to read Shakespeare's accounts of battles and his portraits of soldiers. Next came Clausewitz. Eisenhower read his "On War" three times along with the works of Jomini and Roper. Then he had, at Conner's suggestion, a thorough bath of the Civil War. Grant's memoirs, Steele's "Campaigns," the accounts by Fremantle and Haskell of the Battle of Gettysburg. Apart from military history, Conner nudged him into reading Plato and Tacitus whom he made "palatable and interesting to me—a very large achievement considering my previous attitude toward such men and their works."

Conner never quizzed Eisenhower about a book in the manner of a teacher and student. He would introduce it into a conversation so casually that it was more like a "bull session," Eisenhower recalled. These talks took place especially when they were in the field, reconnoitering the terrain in the Canal Zone. Years later, Eisenhower would recall with the keenest pleasure sitting around a camp fire at night discussing with Conner the Battle of Gettysburg and the campaigns of the Civil War.

In his quarters, he fitted up what he called a "work room" in which he spread out large maps. Then along with a book, he would trace the development of a particular campaign. In this way, he once told me, he studied in minute detail Napoleon's operations at Austerlitz and Marengo and the emperor's last campaign in Italy.

It was a thrilling period for Eisenhower. Conner deftly took him along paths that led to undreamed-of vistas of thought.

One day, Eisenhower's boyhood friend, "Swede" Hazlett, appeared at Camp Gaillard. Hazlett, a graduate of the Naval Academy, was then commander of a submarine. He brought his ship into Panama for repairs. He found a much different man from the one he had known in Abilene when they crammed together for the examination for Annapolis and West Point.

"What interested me most was his work," Hazlett wrote. He... had been largely responsible for drawing up war plans for the defense of the area. He explained them to me with the enthusiasm of a genius."

Gone forever was the carefree cadet who had studied from necessity at the Academy, just enough and no more.

Conner's greatest gift to his protege was still to come.

The general, with remarkable prescience, foresaw a second world war. The potentialities for another great conflict, built into the Treaty of Versailles, were bound to explode, he said. When? In 15 years, Conner said, 20 at the most. He urged Eisenhower to prepare himself for that day.

Until then, Eisenhower had never envisioned himself wearing a general's stars. The spirit of isolationism pervaded America in the 1920's and even the small peacetime Army was shrinking. Hence, Eisenhower calculated that he might reach the rank of full colonel before retirement but it was unlikely that he would rise higher.

Conner suggested that he should try for an appointment to the Command and General Staff School. He did more. After Eisenhower's tour of duty ended at Camp Gaillard, Conner pulled the wires that eventually opened the school's doors to him. He accomplished this through a series of intricate maneuvers of which Eisenhower was unaware at the time. Only an officer experienced in the mysterious and labyrinthine workings of the War Department could have done it.

Eisenhower was thrilled when he was ordered to report to the General Staff School but he had some misgivings about himself. Was he ready for it? He had not commanded troops in combat, had served in only a few posts, and his experience generally was limited. Conner, in a letter, reminded him that he (Conner) had assigned some special duties to him at Camp Gaillard which, in fact, fully prepared him for the grueling examinations he would face at the school.

Many years later, Eisenhower wrote of Conner:

"In a lifetime of association with great and good men, he is the one... to whom I owe an incalculable debt."

Although a very small percentage of these are considered economically important they do cause and estimated annual loss of four billion dollars in the U.S. Because of this most of these pesticides are made to control harmful plant and animal organisms.

Caution should be exercised in use as they can be harmful to people, pets and other animals — if they are eaten, spilled on the skin, or the fumes are breathed. Always read and understand the warning or caution statement on the container. Great care should be taken when disposing of the containers. Containers should never be used again for any purpose. Unwanted pesticide should be emptied into an 18" hole and covered with at least 12" of dirt or more. Do not burn or puncture aerosol cans. Pesticides should not be flushed down the drain. They can damage sewage systems, contaminate water and harm fish and other kinds of water used to clean pesticides equipment should not be allowed to run where children or pets have access to it. Mrs. Nelson Seymour gave the minor lesson, State Parks of Illinois. She had chosen several parks to tell about and passed brochures and pictures pertaining to them. Also, a map of Illinois with these parks located on it.

Jim: "Here is a letter from Manitowac, Wis. We are asked to show a very simple cross-ruff hand and discuss that play."

Oswald: "The cross-ruff, as the name implies, consists of ruffing in both hands. This gives declarer a chance to make his and dummy's trump-tricks separately."

Jim: "Here is a nice, easy one to watch. South is in four spades. He wins the first trick with the ace of clubs. He is looking at five spade-tricks in his hand and the other three aces. That only makes eight. He needs more."

Oswald: "If he follows the time-honored practice of drawing trumps, it will require three leads. That will leave him but one trump in dummy. He will be able to ruff a diamond with that but he will be left with two losing diamonds and two losing clubs."

Jim: "The cross-ruff will enable him to get out without the loss of any diamonds at all."

Oswald: "Let's look over the whole play. He wins the first club and cashes both red aces. Then he plays one round of trumps, making sure that the three-spot is played from his hand. After this he leads hearts and diamonds alternately, and ruffs back and forth."

Jim: "In some cross-ruff situations declarer has to work about an unkind opponent overruffing. He does not with this hand because once he has played his three spot, the rest of his trumps and dummy's are high."

Oswald: "He winds up with an overtrick since the cross-ruff has allowed him to make eight trump-tricks plus the three side-aces."

A window-washing solution of one tablespoon corn starch in a gallon of water will leave glass sparkling.

Council Will Restudy School Crossing Plan At Morton, Clay Ave.

The city council last night ordered a plan for traffic signals at the intersection of Morton and Clay avenues reviewed when a re-reading of the proposal stirred confusion among council members.

A number of aldermen as well as Police Chief Charles P. Runkel said they were under the impression that the lights would be four-way traffic signals.

The proposal brought before the council last night, however, indicated clearly that the signal would be a push-button device operated by a watchman.

The council last week, generally misunderstanding the plan as it was read, approved hiring Casler and Associates to prepare plans and specifications for the signals. The body was to give approval to an engineering agreement last night. That was also delayed until further study of the program is made.

The Division of Highways two weeks ago gave permission to the city to install signals as an aid to students crossing the busy highway.

A closer look at the letter, shown to members of the press, pointed out that four way signals may not be used at school crossings on federally-aided highways. Morton avenue was constructed as part of a highway with federal assistance.

It was pointed out that the light would be operated only during the morning and evening hours when pedestrian traffic of children was heaviest. A similar device was used at the same intersection a number of years ago and was removed. Some city officials after the meeting termed the signal inadequate.

The problem of the push-button signal, according to one city employee, stems from the signal's recycling. The signal stops traffic for 30 seconds while it takes normally only a few moments for children to cross.

It takes two minutes for the signal to recycle.

"Kids may have to stand in rain for two minutes while the light takes time to change," the informed source said.

To hold traffic for 30 seconds on the busy highway may present another problem, he said.

In other council action, a lease between the city and Pat Longstaff for boat docks at Lake Jacksonville was approved. The lease extends for one year with a lifetime option. Longstaff will be permitted to collect boat licensing and camping fees.

A five-year lease at $125 per year was also approved for the Jacksonville Boat Club.

Advertisement for bids to non-arterial streets during the year was authorized. Bids will be received by the city clerk at 5 p.m. April 21.

Submission of bids by the Schmidt, Glisson and Cox auto agencies of Jacksonville for a new police squad car was presented to the council. The bids were referred to the public protection committee for recommendation.

The city clerk will get a new book for minutes with action taken by the council to allot $135 for its purchase.

Alvin Stein Appointed To Airport Board

Alvin Stein, 402 Pendik, an engineer with Mobil Chemical Co., has been named to a five-year term on the Jacksonville Airport Authority, expiring in 1974, by Associate Circuit Judge John B. Wright.

Mr. Stein succeeds Merle Ingels as a member of the authority.

Mr. Ingels served on the Airport Authority since 1946. He was one of the original members of the board.

At a recent meeting of the board, Ingels was honored by the adoption of a resolution commending him for long service to the improvement of aviation in Jacksonville.

College Student Charged Sunday

City police charged Kermit Kerley of Timewell, a student at Illinois College, with attempting to elude a police officer following a four-block chase shortly before 11 p.m. Sunday in the Southeast part of the city.

Kerley was taken to police headquarters and released after posting required bond.

Police said he was stopped in the 800 block of Goltra.

Show Opening Today At Strawn Gallery

Some of the world's leading artists will be represented in an exhibition of contemporary posters opening today at the David Strawn Art Gallery, 331 West College, at 2 p.m.

The show will feature posters by Andy Warhol, Marc Chagall, Jackson Pollock, Claus Olden-burg and more than 25 other artists. The exhibit, from Poster Originals, Ltd., will run through April 27.

Posters, which once enjoyed great popularity and acceptance as an art form have been until recently largely ignored by public and artist alike.

Impressionist artists such as Toulouse-Lautrec and Edward Manet were fascinated with the concept of the poster, which had been introduced in 1867.

This new, growing form of advertising that was mostly picture (and for which one might be paid to design) had a natural appeal to artists. Soon other respected artists in Paris were creating posters.

By 1890, artists in many countries were involved and it was the beginning of a golden decade for poster art.

From the outbreak of World War I until recently, posters had disappeared from the art scene except for a rare few from Chagall, Matisse, Braque and Miro who used the poster medium in the 1930's.

Posters now are enjoying a new Golden Age. Many of the leading artists in America are designing posters which are collected and exhibited in homes and galleries as a thoroughly respectable addition to any art collection. For any where from five dollars up into the hundreds (for small signed editions) anyone can own a handsomely designed poster by a host of contemporary artists.

It will be possible to order copies of all of the posters except those few that were either printed in very small editions or were particularly popular and are already sold out.

Gallery hours are from 2 to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday and from 7 to 9 Friday night.
